The papers cover the Archbishop's visit to the Western Front in 1916; for this, see also Michael Snape, 'Archbishop Davidson's Visit to the Western Front, May 1916' in From the Reformation to the Permissive Society: A Miscellany in Celebration of the 400th Anniversary of Lambeth Palace Library, ed. There are also some references to the War in the papers of Cosmo Gordon Lang (ref: Lang), later Archbishop of Canterbury but then Archbishop of York.

There are references to wartime issues in the records of Bishops' Meetings (ref: BM), the minutes of which record biannual discussions of diocesan and suffragan bishops in England and Wales chaired by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Topics relating to the War include forms of prayer and intercession, clergy combatants, army chaplains and other spiritual provision, refugees, the possibility of invasion, the impact of the War on marriage, and War memorials in churches.

3. OTHER ARCHIVE COLLECTIONS

The papers of George Bell, chaplain to Archbishop Davidson, contain material relating to the War, during which he lost two brothers. The papers include correspondence with friends serving at the Front (ref: Bell 187) and correspondence relating to wartime publications edited by him (ref: Bell 188). These provide interesting context for his later career: the Library holds voluminous papers of Bell as Bishop of Chichester (1929-58) reflecting his heavy engagement in relations with Germany and international affairs before, during and after the Second World War, and he is famous for his views on bombing policy at that period.

Items among the papers of the liturgical scholar W J Birkbeck relating to the War include a letter written by Birkbeck to his son Michael in April 1916, captured by the Germans and received by his son after Birkbeck's death (ref: Birkbeck/1/11/1). There is also material relating to a prayer for animals ('Humble Beasts') dying in the War, adapted from the Russian Orthodox liturgy (ref: Birkbeck 1/12/9).

There are letters from R C Sherriff to his friend Gerald Ellison, later Bishop of London (ref: Ellison P/10/4/7). Sherriff is famous for his play about the War, Journey's End; the letters in the Library refer to the screenplay for the film version of Erich Maria Remarque's The Road Back, which Sherriff co-wrote.

The archive of the Mothers' Union includes a roll of honour listing members' relatives killed in the First World War, and referring to memorial panels in the chapel at their headquarters Mary Sumner House (ref: MU/MSH/7/1-3).

Other Church of England archives relating to the War are housed at the Church of England Record Centre, Bermondsey. These include papers on loans made by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to the government to finance the War (ref: ECE/7/1/8056) and files on the military service of staff of Queen Anne's Bounty and on other aspects of the impact of the War, including some letters from those serving at the Front (ref: QAB/7/12, QAB/9/1).

- Wartime letters of the liturgiologist Percy Dearmer to his second wife Nancy written during active service, 1916 (ref: MS 4910).

5. PRINTED SOURCES

The Library also holds extensive publications (both contemporary and secondary) relating to the War. To identify relevant sources, please search the printed books catalogue:

www.lambethpalacelibrary.org/content/searchcollections

These include substantial holdings of wartime liturgies, such as special forms of prayer for nationwide or local use, offices for the fallen, dedication of memorials, and services for Armistice Day/Remembrance Sunday; other unofficial devotional works; wartime sermons; contemporary pamphlets on aspects of the War; and works relating to military chaplains.

It also holds church newspapers covering the wartime period (Church Times and The Guardian).

The Library does not hold detailed information on individual service chaplains, although basic information should be recorded in its holdings of Crockford's Clerical Directory. For other information on service chaplains, see section 10 of the guide on sources for Anglican clergy:
